forces in Namibia during the struggle for Namibia’s independence. At this time, many innocent Namibians were brutally killed, some disappeared without trace. These are the same people who fabricated the ‘divide and reign’ tactic, said Cde Kapia. “These are the same people who are after me. Even some senior police officers were drafted into this campaign to arrest Kapia. It is that I have I have to be done to arrest me.” This whole political and military situation motivated Cde Kapia to get out of Parliament so that someone could get in. You know who followed when I left. (Helipo Hamaruty.)”

“The right-wing character of the regime has assembled a notorious military squad modeled after the infamous Koevoet. This squad was trained with people who were associated with the Pinochet dictatorship. CODEH further charges that the regime has assembled a genocidal extermination of political opponents of the regime. It was designed to carry out with ruthless efficiency a campaign of extermination of political opponents of the regime.

This existed as part of a so-called preventive war in support of the support of the coup plotters for the Honduran military, in the context of the CIA war on Nicaragua. The former Sandinista military was led by the Sandinistas. Involved in the day-to-day activities of the 3-16 squad was the United States embassy in Nicaragua under John Negroponte.

On Tuesday, after attending the Vallejo’s funeral, another school teacher, Martin Florencio Rivera, was assassinated outside his house in broad daylight, as he was getting out of a car. Like his predecessor, Florencio Rivera was killed out of the political and military situation.

CODEH further charges that the Miguelini regime is receiving advice from an Israeli private security company on what level of violence to use against the demonstrator. It is also evident that Miguelini is supported by people who were associated with the dictatorship including the infamous Billy Joa, who is now an advisor to the de facto regime. Joa, an architect of the death squads of the 1970s, was trained by the American CIA and the Chilean fascist dictatorship of Augusto Pinochet.

Another human rights group, the Committee of Relatives of the Detained and Disappeared in Honduras (CODEH), has reported that the regime has assembled a death squad of 120 individuals, which trains on private ranches and includes elements associated with the Pinochet dictatorship. President Bertha Olivo reported that among these individuals is Robert Carmona, a Venezuelan widely believed to have planned Zelaya’s kidnaping and expulsion from the presidency. Carmona was also involved in the failed coup attempt overwhelming President Hugo Chavez in April 2002. Political and class tensions have transformed Honduras society into a powder-keg. Zelaya has insisted that his National Resistance Front take a non-violent course of action. However, verify that if being imposed on his supporters by the regime.

Despite the repression and the wave of regular popular resistance is escalating. Tens of thousands of teachers and health workers have declared a general strike against the regime. The teachers reaffirmed their decision to walk out at August 3 public rally in Tegucigalpa. One speaker declared: “We cannot teach while they are killing our members. On August 4, thousands of students batted police in Tegucigalpa and the University of Technology march began in the Honduran interior. The demonstrators are expected to walk 15 to 20 kilometers daily, arriving in Tegucigalpa and San Pedro de Sula next Wednesday.

At a news conference Tuesday, State Department spokesman Phillip Crowley refused to call Zelaya’s removal a military coup, a designation that would legally obligate the US government to cancel all but humanitarian aid to the regime.

The Obama administration insists on promoting the fantasy that both sides can come to an agreement on the basis of proposals by Costa Rican President Arias. Behind this public stance is Washington’s attempt to consolidate the political aims pursued by the coup, while running out the clock on the remainder of Zelaya’s presidency. The Obama White House and the State Department have made no criticism of the repression and degradation of human rights in Honduras. For his part, Zelaya has continued to accept the Arias proposals, which would relegate him to a toothless presidency as part of a government of “national unity” controlled by those who overthrew him. He has oscillated between rhetorical condemnation of those mobilize his followers in a struggle against the usurping government and vows that he will continue his peaceful methods, employing the “weapons of reason.”

On Wednesday, Zelaya returned to Nicaragua from meeting with Mexican President Calderon. While in Mexico, Zelaya accused the “criminals in power in the United States of killing the coup. At the same time, he refused to include President Obama in his decision. He also reaffirmed his support for the Atras plan, which decrees a complete amnesty for the coup’s organizers and demands that Zelaya abandon his plans for a popular plebiscite on a constituent assembly to revise the country’s US-imposed constitution.

The right-wing character of the regime has continued to make it clear that it will not accept that part of the Arias Plan that requires Zelaya’s return to his position as president of Honduras. It insists that the ousted president would have to return only for the purpose of being arrested and placed on trial for “treason.”

Denouncing Zelaya for establishing closer relations with Venezuela’s President Hugo Chavez, Garcia Padtec echoed the heated rhetoric of the Reagan administration and the region’s right-wing dictatorship during that period. “Central America was not the objective of this communism discredited as democracy,” he said.

“This socialism, communism, Chavismo, we could call it, was headed to the heart of the United States. Meanwhile, the head of armed forces, General Romero Vasquez Velasquez, issued a direct threat to the leaders of the protests against the coup. He said: ‘They call us ‘assassins.’ It is an effort to demonize the troops. When they do this, they are committing a crime, first and foremost, that of defamation. We’re going to go after them. They are acting with impunity.’”
