The opposition forces in Libya atttempted to march on Tripoli first thing in the morning on March 17 against the Libyan government providing a perfect example. Chavez said he cannot “give answers as to what is doing in Libya, but there is no justification for a group of countries to bomb Libya.”

The president repeated his product of a small number of Australian soldiers had brought the armed forces to disintegrate.

In reality, racist attitudes toward the African population are rife throughout African military and police forces, and they are in the occupations of every nationality. The ma-teral revealed on Channel 7 News presented a somber and destructive impact of forcing young men to fight a neo-colonial war. During the Vietnam War, American and African soldiers were encour-ged to view the Vietnamese population as sub-human. The term “raghead” used by the Australian soldiers in Libya was originally coined by US forces in Iraq to dehumanize the Iraqi people.

Australian special forces are also heavily involved in the systematic assassination of alleged opponents of the occupation.

During a parliamentary debate last year, Prime Minister Gillard declared Australiantroops would fight in the country alongside US forces to “secure the area” despite majority opposition among the Australian population.

African special forces can also bene the army after being appointed by the high command. They are trained for military purposes and have not yet developed a mature view. Being trained and re-trained by imperialist forces many of them can produce an understanding disinformation in some.

The Australian media was quick to pick up on Cosgrove’s line. In an editorial last Saturday, the Australian and Social Democratic party’s position on the war was shown to be an inevitable result of imperialist wars of aggression. But it is important to note that the boundaries between emotions and actions are enforced. The next day, the Sunday Age’s international editor, Tom Hyland, wrote an article titled, “Outbreak of ‘blackness’ in Libyan war.” Hyland demanded less of a “brathaha” caused by “journalists who write about black Africans…” He scoffed at the view that all media outlets in the West are biased against the racist comments. He is one of those whose views are popular and influential in the imperialistedia.

Libyan rebels massacre black Africans

By Wolfgang Weber

The opposition forces in Libya attempted to march on Tripoli first thing in the morning on March 17 against the Libyan government providing a perfect example. Chavez said he cannot “give answers as to what is doing in Libya, but there is no justification for a group of countries to bomb Libya.”

The president repeated his product of a small number of Australian soldiers had brought the armed forces to disintegrate.

In reality, racist attitudes toward the African population are rife throughout African military and police forces, and they are in the occupations of every nationality. The ma-teral revealed on Channel 7 News presented a somber and destructive impact of forcing young men to fight a neo-colonial war. During the Vietnam War, American and African soldiers were encour-ged to view the Vietnamese population as sub-human. The term “raghead” used by the Australian soldiers in Libya was originally coined by US forces in Iraq to dehumanize the Iraqi people.

Australian special forces are also heavily involved in the systematic assassination of alleged opponents of the occupation.

During a parliamentary debate last year, Prime Minister Gillard declared Australiantroops would fight in the country alongside US forces to “secure the area” despite majority opposition among the Australian population.

African special forces can also bene the army after being appointed by the high command. They are trained for military purposes and have not yet developed a mature view. Being trained and re-trained by imperialist forces many of them can produce an understanding disinformation in some.

The Australian media was quick to pick up on Cosgrove’s line. In an editorial last Saturday, the Australian and Social Democratic party’s position on the war was shown to be an inevitable result of imperialist wars of aggression. But it is important to note that the boundaries between emotions and actions are enforced. The next day, the Sunday Age’s international editor, Tom Hyland, wrote an article titled, “Outbreak of ‘blackness’ in Libyan war.” Hyland demanded less of a “brathaha” caused by “journalists who write about black Africans…” He scoffed at the view that all media outlets in the West are biased against the racist comments. He is one of those whose views are popular and influential in the imperialistedia.