WINDHOEK - Namibian football players who play their trade in South Africa and the rest of the world are contemplating moves in their football career.

Namibian midfielders Sydney Plaatjies is set to leave Mamelodi Sundowns after failing to play a match so far this season. He has made only four starts for Sundowns since joining from Jomo Cosmos two years ago.

He spent the second half of last season on loan at Moroka Swallows and now it seems he will be off again – albeit this time on a permanent contract.

Plaatjies business manager, Colin April, is working 24/7 around the clock to find him a new football home, either in Belgium, Turkey or South Africa. The plans are under way, depending on Sundowns’ response to let him go as he still has two years remaining on his contract.

The 27-year-old has been frustrated in his efforts to impress new coach Hristo Stoitchkov, and is currently not training with the first team, according to his trainer at the ringside, Warren Nashilongo.

Nashilongo was one of the happiest men ever that night. “I am feeling good”, said Nashilongo, headlining his training and spirit. Nashilongo who looked desperate and hungry for victory was caught by surprise by notorious thieves in Johannesburg. The world champion was hit by armed robbers near the OR Tambo International Airport to Namibia.

The same Tuesday Hitman was supposed to reach the referred officials the end of the month. He has not arrived yet, and not to hide around the bush.
