

Comments

from page 3

vember 2009, meaning they are following the dying trend already. Just like COD, DTA and others. Their demonstration is a sign of failure, because they cannot identify the polling station where election was rigged, neither the constituency nor the region which causes their failure. • How can we rig election results in the presence of political party's representative? • How can we rig election results whereby counting was done in their presence? • How can you ask ECN officials to resign if you want them to nullify the results? • Which election body do you want to run Namibian's affair if not the ECN? • At least they must appreciate how democratic the Swapo party government is, by allowing their will and wishes to be as they wanted through appointing a foreign company to print election materials, was that not democratic?

Swapo party will continue to serve the Namibian people toward and beyond 2030. As a word of encouragement comrades, stay vigilant, united and purposeful all times. Namibia is ours and victory is ours! Vision 2030 will be a product of what you are able to contribute each seconds of your daily life! To students, study hard next year. To workers, work tirelessly to bring about quality results! And to every one of you ensure that you are united in your family, neighborhood, sections, branches, district, regional, countrywide and abroad! Unit is strength; therefore make Xmas party with your neighbors, comrades and friends to cement the hard won peace, freedom and independence! Swapo party

◆ Posted by Armas (In-Transit)

The rejection of the P and NA results are a transparent deflection! Having slaughtered fellow opposition parties, the only way RDP could look good in their eyes was to scream at the top of its hysterical voice "erection rigging"! And then???? Political cul-de-sac!!!!

◆ Posted by Benedick M Louw, Cuba

The masses have spoken once again, and this is not something that is likely to change soon..students all over in foreign missions including Cuba have spoken in unison..United we stand, devided we shall fall, Viva SWAPO VIVIA!!!!...Now hardwork!!!

◆ Posted by Kapitaholo Otati

VIVA Swapo party yaNamibia VIVA. We in Swapo party wants to let those hibernators knows .that defecting.Swapo is defeting the nation.Swapo is the Nation and the Nations of Namibia are Swapo. expects people to vote them witch they defect is shame for them.RADOPAS

◆ Posted by Amunjela

Did RADOPA drop the high court case against the ECN?. Oyena oku lengwa mumvo otaya yi peni mbela

SPOTLIGHT

from page 3

stitutions of the SWAPO Party Government including the State House, a preposterous and idiotic revelation by a person of his stature. Gwen Lister did not question this lunacy, she went ahead to publish these figures. Don't forget that she even published the RDP propaganda that it won 3900 votes against 2 votes to SWAPO in Ohalushu. Gwen Lister's calculation in publishing this lie was for the reason that she wanted RDP to win. Also in the so-called stand-off at Outapi, remember she put frontpage the alleged weapons confiscated from both "RDP and SWAPO" members and in particular there was a 'bazooka' in the picture. The truth as was exposed by Cde. John Hakaye, the bazooka in the picture was a toy gun. But Gwen Lister never bothered to correct that lie.

Henning Melber and Alfredo Hengari were amongst the worst academic bats prior to the just ended elections. They tried hard in Gwen Lister's paper to twist facts and cooked the truth in order to influence the potential voters in abandoning SWAPO Party. As if these were not enough, Gwen Lister used an intern working for her paper, Ndapwa Alweendo, to influence the bornfrees. Gwen Lister put Ndapwa's article just next to the SMS page because she wanted most of her readers not miss it. And then just after it appeared, Gwen Lister ensured that only smses praising Ndapwa Alweendo were published. Actually members of SWAPO Party sent many SMSes reacting to the stupidity of Ndapwa Alweendo, a daughter of Tom Alweendo, Governor of Bank of Namibia, but these messages were obviously not published.

John Grobler aka Jonathan Cobra has a bounty of over N$50 million over his lies and propaganda. As if that were not enough he has just written more in a latest article published by the South African equivalent of The Namibian newspaper called Mail and Guardian. If you look into the shareholders of Mail and Guardian you discover English and former Rhodesians who have interests in the paper. So it is to be expected that they would publish lies and propaganda of a former Koevoet's kith and kin like John Grobler. Listen to the non-tial voters in abandoning SWAPO Party. As if these were not enough, Gwen Lister used

LETTERS/OPINIONS

Watch these embassies

I am not well versed in the lingo of diplomacy and deep politics. The little I understand is that when a Namibian is appointed by President of Namibia to represent him/her outside Namibia, this means 24/7 such a person must represent President of the Republic of Namibia beyond our borders. I think that is why such persons are addressed His Excellency. And they are called Ambassadors/High Commissioners of Namibia to this or that country. As I was watching results of the just ended Presidential and National Assembly Elections results from Namibian embassies across the world something occurred to me. The results from New York and Gaborone were obviously against SWAPO Party.

But President Pohamba was a presidential candidate of SWAPO Party yet the ambassadors in those two countries allowed their families to vote for Hidipo Hamutenya President of the Rally for Democracy and Progress. Further scrutiny even revealed disturbing things.

These two ambassadors have stopped politics being discussed in the embassy. In New York you are not allowed to mention the name of SWAPO. The ambassador has given those clear instructions. Recently, there was an IPU delegation from here in Namibia, these MPs especially the likes of Hon. Mensah Williams and Hon. Alexia Ncube were not picked up. Only Hon. Peya Mushelenga was picked up for reasons yet unknown to this writer. It turns out, the embassy has two cars and drivers, one is assigned to the ambassador and the other one works fulltime for the wife. I am not sure if this is standard practice in diplomacy. I was thinking that taxpayers only foot the bill for the ambassador not the spouse.

The situation from these two embassies tell me something. The President of the Republic of Namibia is not really represented in our embassies. Those people sent there have turned against the appointing authority. It is very obvious. After all, that is what Jesaya Nyamu meant when he said that they have people "on mission" in every Ministry of Government.

I hear they have decided to recall a SWAPO cadre Patuleni and replace her with an RDP supporter who will soon depart to New York. One official is also soon going there apparently selected with the knowledge of one senior minister. As for Botswana it is bad news all the way, but then again, I cannot say that it was surprising. Some ambassadors there are regulars in Namibia strategizing for RDP. One ambassador has also been a regular in Omaheke spotted comfortably in the company of an RDP administrator in that region prior to the elections. I invite the those two embassies to deny with facts what is written about them.

I rest my case, Kula Wumone

The Ovambanderu issue: Is the split historical?

After a long long-drawn-out dispute between chief Keharanjo II Nguvauva and his half brother Deputy Minister Kilus Nguvauva over who should be heir to the throne of their late father Chief Munjuku II Nguvauva of Ovambanderu, the Ministry of Regional and Local Government and Housing and Rural Development came to their rescue by appointing a fact finding team, of which the result came in favour of Keharanjo II Nguvauva. Like son like father, Chief Keharanjo II Nguvauva has stepped into his father's shoes.

Does he fit or are they too big for him? In order to give a broad and synoptic picture of the existence of the Mbanderu chieftainship, the following facts authenticate the appointment of Chief Kaharanjo as the rightful successor, his blood relationship with the chiefs of the Ovambanderu Both paternal and maternal is there.

Chief Keharanjo II Nguvauva comes from the royal blood and also both his parents come from the same royal blood. Starting from Kahimemua Nguvauva his grand grandfather, followed by Chief Kungairi Nguvauva, the son of Kahimemua Nguvauva. Kungairi was shot dead at the battle of Otjunda by the German troops. He was the father of Keharanjo I Nguvauva who was the father of late Chief Munjuku II Nguvauva, the father of the current Chief Kaharanjo II Nguvauva named after his grandfather. The Ovambanderu considered two clans of Ovambanderu as the only people who should routinely take over the chieftainship. The Ovakwatjivi and Ovakweyuva, Keharanjo II Nguvauva by virtue of being from the two clans, qualifies him to become the Ovambanderu Chief. The grandmother of Keharanjo II is a sister of Keharanjo I Nguvauva same parents as is the norm in our customary law that you marry from the same blood, so the same with Munjuku got married to a member of the royal family. The connection of Keharanjo to chieftainship is endless.

It was after the battle of Lampe that some of our people crossed to Botswana seeking declared a 75% landslide victory for Swapo in results so skewed and of such statistical improb ability that even the Swapo leadership seem to think it was too good to be true. Eight of the opposition parties agreed for the second time since the equally controversial 2004 elections, that they are taking the electoral commission to court after having entered into a pre-election pact to pool resources to fight what will be in all likelihood a drawn-out legal battle. What this tells us is that Grobler is privy to the pre-election pact between RDP and other turn coat parties and certain reactionary media houses.. Perhaps Grobler needs to enlighten the Namibian people on the secret trip of his Hidipo Hamutenya to Germany just a day after the election results?

On his part Max Hamata of Informante, suddenly became another mouthpiece of RDP. In the run-up to the elections, Max Hamata published literally every rubbish of Phil ya Nangolo which appeared to suggest that the two were talking and strategizing together. In addition, politically motivated stories such as the Chinese bursaries and the new fleet for His Excellency the President were leaked to him by fellow RDP supporters in the SWAPO Party Government. At least we know now who leaked these stories to Max Hamata. The link between Max Hamata and Phil ya Nangolo has also been established with the hallucination of an alleged hit-list for the duo. Actually, this is a lie. It was Max Hamata who sent his reporter to the Inspector General and from there he changed the story which now appeared on the website of NSHR. Despite all the concocted foolish acts they have lost dismally as the Namibian people could easily see their cheap political ploy.

They threatened ECN to abandon the agreement with NamPrint must to print the ballot papers. Consequently the ballot papers were printed in South Africa. They demanded counting of ballot papers to be done at the polling centres, ECN complied and counting was done in the presence of all political parties agents and the Namibian Police. After suffering a comprehensive and democratic defeat, RDP and his gang of bad losers are now screaming in the wilderness of shame, claiming vote rigging and irregularities. We should not forget that Phillemon Kanime remains a leader of RDP and the Voter's Roll was safeguarded by the wife of Hidipo Hamutenya. The Namibian people are not stupid.

Comrade Paulus Shipale in his article "Elections' Post Mortem" of New Era recently put it correctly that "President Pohamba with 80% and the SWAPO Party with 75% were declared the winners of the elections with 611 221 and 602 580 votes respectively." Meanwhile, "RDP simply got 11% by a total of only 90 556 votes received, thus taking 4 seats from CoD, 2 from DTA and 1 from NUDO or UDF respectively." And went further to say that "it seems their 'database' of 390 000 included the 300 000 virgin votes of the 'born frees' who voted for SWAPO. CoD, RP and SWANU got 1 seat each from the leftover votes mainly from SWAPO, compliments of the proportional system. SWAPO Party won with 2/3 majority."

Who is fooling who? This is no wonder many Legal Practitioners have refused to take their case for lack of sufficient grounds upon which the case should be launched. The demonstration by their combined youth leagues fell flat on its face. Wherever they appeared the number was so insignificant. At Oshakati, five people were spotted demonstrating. Mind you, this was supposed to be a demonstration of combined youth leagues of eight political parties, what a shame! Is this not a Savimbi syndrome?

Cont on page 5