I am not RDP’s,” says Nghixuluwa

This statement is true. The writer is expressing their desire not to be associated with the RDP, an acronym that stands for the Democratic Party, a political party in Namibia. The writer seems to beavoading any connection with the party, possibly due to personal beliefs or experiences related to the party. The context of the quote suggests that the writer is prioritizing their own identity and values over any political affiliation.

No party should be divided by such cheap parochialism. The SWAPO Party should look to this time of enrichment and development as a time of great change. We have to look at the reality with open eyes and hearts and frame the solutions accordingly. Other nations have found a way to go and we need to learn from them and apply it to Namibia.

MTC is currently busy at work to switch over from 3G to 4G cellular technology, making Namibia the first country in Africa to introduce 4G technology in Africa.

Once 4G technology comes into operation, Namibia is set to experience faster mobile broadband Internet access speeds. The President called on Namibians to maintain unity, peace and stability in order to economically develop and sustain its growth.

We should look at the realty with open eyes and hearts and frame solutions accordingly. Other countries have legalized abortion. Are we more religious and God-fearing than them? What if God hates us for doing nothing about babies being dumped in riverbeds when we could take corrective measures like so many countries have done? In 1991, more than 35,000 abortions were performed in South Africa.

We have to weigh the options. The Draft Bill was first released for public input in June 1996. It was later followed by a full-scale review of the Bill. Many Namibians chose to weigh the pros and cons of the Bill.

The overriding objective, Dr. Amadhila said then, was for us to arrive at an understanding that when a girl said she was not ready for a baby, she meant no. No amount of religious activism would change this. If you do anything to her, you will only make her hate you. As a society, we need to find a way to support her and help her through this time of enrichment and development.

Whether we like it or not, abortion is a social problem we need to face head-on. Thousands of abortions are carried out in South Africa every year.

The result is baby dumping, an ugly issue which has littered Police crime reports for many years. There were some people who were so angry with society that they drove their newborn infants into the streets and dumped them, leaving them to die gruesome deaths in valleys, dustbins and toilets. The result is bab...
